

Council, Deans debate

This afternoon at 5 pm an open discussion between Deans, Vice-Principals and Student Councilors will take place in the Union Ballroom. This is the first open gathering of its kind in the recent history of McGill. The original suggestion for the meeting was made by Principal and Vice-Chancellor H. Locke Robertson about ten days ago to Robert Hajaly, President of the Students' Society. After discussion with members of council the idea of the meeting was approved, with the proviso that it be held in public. This was acceptable to the Principal and the date was set early this week.

There will be no concrete agenda for the meeting; the reason for the meeting is to provide an opportunity for all present to "discuss common problems", and is designed to air grievances. Internal Vice-President Peter Foster feels that the meeting will be a "worthwhile thing. It will prevent differences based on misunderstanding from arising. Our differences in future should be substantive ones".

Although each of the executive members have several questions they will raise at the meeting, no joint plan has been drawn up. Although Hajaly, Hyman and Foster all feel that the meeting will be beneficial they hesitated to make any prediction about this type of dialogue becoming a continuing affair.

Although the number of Deans who will attend the meeting is still indefinite it is expected that a majority will be present. Vice-Principal (Academic) Oliver and Vice-Principal (Development) Winkler will also be present with Dr. Robertson.

One of the major questions bound to arise at such a meeting will concern the recent decision by Senate (ratified by the Board of Governors) to include eight students on Senate.

In taking this step Senate also included certain conditions of eligibility for student senators.

Last Thursday Council rejected the idea that Senate should set standards for student senators. Conditions on eligibility if any, should be set by Council.

This gesture by the administration seems to follow a new pattern established after last November's demonstrations of avoiding confrontations with students as much as possible. Last spring the administration, faculty and students set up the Tripartite Commission on the Nature of the University and this fall the joint Senate-Board of Governors committee has recommended the inclusion of students on Senate.

Following the Ballroom session there will be a dinner for the participants at the Faculty Club.

Board of Governors decision puts eight students on Senate

The Board of Governors, McGill's "supreme governing authority" yesterday approved unanimously recommendations of a joint Senate - Board committee to put eight students on Senate and to open Senate and Board meetings.

The section on the method of selection of the student senators, that they "be elected by the students in accord with procedures which will be specifically provided for in the Constitutions of the McGill and Macdonald College Student Societies", was deleted at the request of Principal H. Locke Robertson so he could further discuss the method of selection with Senate.

Director of the Information Service Albert Tunis estimates that Senate meetings would open in about a month. Other changes, affecting the composition of the Senate and the Board of Governors, will be effective as soon as the University Statutes can be appropriately amended.

The most drastic changes will be in the composition of Senate, whose membership will be increased from 38 to 65. Faculty representation will be 32 instead of 9; Arts and Science, the largest faculty, will alone have 14 members.

The composition of the Board of Governors itself will undergo a major revision. Five members will be elected by and from the University Senate for three-year staggered terms. Student senators will be eligible.

In addition, 24 other Governors will be elected for staggered five-year terms under a general directive that nominees will be representatives of the various parts of the community which the University serves, "such as agencies of government, research, the professions, business, labour, and the Arts."

The number of Governors will remain the same as provided for in the present Statutes, a total of 36.

The committee which formulated the recommendations was created in April, 1966, to study the Duff-Berdhal Report on University Government in Canada and to make recommendations on its findings.

Students' Society Incorporated means increased autonomy

by SEYMOUR KAUFMAN

Seeking greater autonomy in student affairs and in future student projects the McGill Students' Society, after almost a year of consideration and legal negotiation, has incorporated effective this month.

Specifically, incorporation has given the Students' Society the legal powers to:

- 1) carry out housing programs and to hold and be liable for property;
- 2) be legally liable for the McGill Daily and other communications of the Students' Society;
- 3) engage in legal action as a body such as being able to sue or negotiate any legal contracts.

Students' Society President Robert Hajaly, who as Engineering representative on Council first moved to incorporate the Society during the Daily crisis of last year, feels the new legal stature of the Society will give the Students' Council necessary powers in dealing with the pressing problem of student housing and in controlling the Daily.

"Without incorporating we would not be able to buy property to lease out on a corporate basis nor could we obtain a loan from the provincial government for buying such property," Hajaly said. Council, under the direction of Hajaly, Internal Vice-President Peter Foster and External Vice-President Ian Hyman, plans to purchase a house on Milton Street which would be turned into a co-op for fifteen students and also to begin construction on a larger co-op next summer.

Faced with the third Daily crisis in as many years, Hajaly feels incorporation of the Society will give students greater legal strength against intervention by the Administration in future Daily disputes.

"Previously the Administration intervened because they felt they were legally responsible and that Council could not handle the problem quickly enough. Now, however, Council is legally liable and in the upcoming Council meeting I will present a motion that will give Council regularized procedures to effectively deal with such matters. This would effectively end any legal basis the Administration might have for intervening," Hajaly said.

Incorporation will facilitate legal proceedings on the part of the Society. Previously Council had to hire a lawyer and go to court under the name of a person in the Students' Society. How the Society is able to sue as a body with the advantage that no officer will be legally liable for actions he takes on behalf of the Society.

The entire incorporation proceedings took only a month and a half-it was initially proposed by the Executive to the Council meeting in Summer Committee and on September 19th the Society was notified that it was officially incorporated retroactive to the 8th of the month. Hajaly felt that the lawyer hired by the Society, M. Jean Pierre Mongeau, had done an excellent job in keeping the Society from becoming entangled in legal red tape such as that experienced at the Université de Montréal where incorporation procedures have taken over a year.

There's hope yet

It looks like there may be some hope left for old McGill. The recommendations approved by the Board of Governors yesterday are a notable addition to the process of reforming and democratizing University government. The first step has been taken; others must follow.

The most significant feature of the recommendations is the inclusion of students on Senate and the possibility (albeit remote for the time being) of having students on the previously sacrosanct Board of Governors. The Administration seems to be finally willing to recognize that students can play an effective role in running the University.

But just as important is the increase in the number of faculty members on Senate, which creates a majority of elected staff on Senate. Together with the eight student representatives the group that will have the loudest voice in decisions affecting the University will be those who form its most vital part: those who teach and those who learn.

In making its recommendations the Joint Committee of Senate and the Board of Governors finally admitted that governing a university is not only an elite function. They upheld the basic principle that students at McGill and all over the world have been fighting for, that decisions should be made by those whom they affect.

Students have quite definitely made their mark. In the report on which its recommendations were based the Committee pointed to the changing role of the student since World War II.

And since that report was made in November of last year other events have shown the increasingly important role of the student in today's world. Maybe all those demonstrations were worth it; students are now regarded as a force with which to be contended.

Even at McGill there has been a change in attitude since the uproar last November. When the Joint Committee presented its original report it called for only three student Senators, but there will be eight according to the revised recommendations. After enough students made enough noise the Committee invited briefs from the Students' Society.

The Principal's decision to reconsider the stipulations regarding the method of selection of student Senators was made after last week's Council meeting when Council made it clear that only students would decide how to choose their Senators.

There is much still to be done to give students the share they deserve in the decision making process around this University and it should be evident now that it takes a strong student voice to force University action.

With the Board of Governors' decision yesterday McGill is putting itself on the road to progress. But the game is not over. Eight votes out of 62 does not amount to the tripartite representation demanded last year. We must take advantage of the momentum created by these recommendations and continue to prove that we are capable of playing an equal role in running the University, and we must continue to show that we want that equal share.

Few people for few pages — John, Tom, Seymour, Chris. And even less news. But the stuff came in over the wire and we live on for yet another day.

The following are excerpts from the recommendations of the Joint Committee of Senate and Board of Governors on University Government at McGill which were adopted unanimously at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Governors.

These recommendations, resulting from the joint meeting of Senate and the Board of Governors of September 9, 1968, were presented to the Board after adoption by Senate.

It is recommended that the Board of Governors consist of:

- The Chancellor (as at present)
- The Principal (as at present)
- 5 members elected by the Graduates' Society with 5-year staggered terms (as at present)
- 5 members elected by the Senate with 3-year staggered terms, student members of Senate being eligible.
- (These are to be elected by all the members of Senate)
- 24 other members, diversified.

Attending but not members:
Vice-Principals (3)
Secretary of the Board
Total members: 36

Quorum: 10

The committee shall seek nominees representative of the various parts of the community which the university serves, such as agencies of government, research, the professions, business, labour and the Arts.

The Committee now recommends that Senate shall be composed of the following, all the elected members to be full members of the University:

Ex-Officio	Elected Faculty	Others
Principal	14 Arts and Science	5 Governors
Chancellor	(3 per division and 2 at large)	8 students
3 Vice-Principals	3 Medicine
12 Deans	4 Engineering
	2 Law
	2 Agriculture
	1 Management
	1 Graduate Studies
	1 Dentistry
	1 Divinity
	1 Music
	2 Education

Total: 62.

Note: The Director of Continuing Education
The Warden of R.V.C.
The Director of Libraries
(would sit on Senate with voice but no vote)

Total all Classes of Senators: 65

It is necessary at this point to make it clear that it is the Committee's intention to broaden the basis of the electorate as well as the pool of staff from which Senate members may be chosen, and in particular to provide enlarged opportunities for staff both to vote and to stand for office. For these reasons the Committee recommends that full-time teaching staff with the rank of Assistant Professor and higher will have the right to vote and to stand for such office.

This recommendation is in implicit conflict with the present statutory provisions for the membership of Faculties, provisions which in the view of the Committee no longer reflect the wishes of the majority of staff of all ranks. The Committee, therefore, further recommends that each full-time Assistant Professor shall be a member of the appropriate Faculty.

It is recommended that meetings of the Senate and the Board of Governors should be open, except when confidential matters, as determined by them, are discussed.

A special Joint Committee of Governors and Senate be established to revise the Statutes of the University in accordance with these recommendations; to incorporate all existing and relevant amendments added to the Statutes since they were promulgated in 1939; and wherever possible to employ such language in the revised Statutes as will indicate the changing character and spirit of the University in the matter of its governance, with particular reference to the constructive relationship between staff, Senate, Governors and students that is now a fact of life at McGill University.

It is recommended that Senate and the Board of Governors consider establishing a Committee with broad membership to maintain a continuing review of University Government.

South Vietnamese reports students harassed by police

by TRAN VAN DINH

College Press Service

WASHINGTON — On July 24, two co-eds representing the executive committee of the Saigon Student Union (SSU) called a press conference at the Union's headquarters to protest the "kidnaping" of Nguyen Truong Con, 23-year-old editor of the Sinh Vien, the SSU's official magazine. Con had been picked up that day by the police without a warrant while he was on his way home.

Miss Hao said: "Since 1954, South Vietnam has voluntarily joined the side of freedom, and despite several successive governments' pledge to implement democracy, the students have not seen democracy anywhere." She warned that "by court-martialing Nguyen Truong Con, the government will collectively court-martial 25,000 students and 5,000 readers of the magazine as well."

The next day, a field military court sentenced Nguyen Truong Con to five years at hard labor. The verdict could not be appealed. He was accused of "having disseminated false peace and pro-communist printed material harmful to the anti-communist struggle of the Vietnamese people and armed forces."

The condemnation of Nguyen Truong Con was but one case in the long list of repressions by Thieu-Ky's military regime against Vietnamese who fight for peace and civil rights. (Truong Dinh Dzu, the runner up peace candidate in the 1967 presidential elections, was also condemned to five years at hard labor July 26.)

Suffering from arbitrary measures by their own government is not new to Vietnamese students. But in recent weeks, the arrests of students have reached a regularity unmatched even by the 1963 crackdown on the Buddhists and students by the late President Ngo Dinh Diem. Two years ago, during the Buddhist uprisings in the summer of 1966, many students (especially those at the University of Hue in Central Vietnam) were imprisoned. Quite a few joined the National Liberation Front (NLF) just to surface again in the Tet offensive. The Tet offensive in early February, which brought the war into the heart of the cities where most students live, the brutality of the U.S. military operations conducted to "save" Saigon and Hue, have left a trail of shock and despair for many who in the past could afford to go to school and forget that a few miles away, in the rice fields, their countrymen were dying by the thousands.

The demands for peace which have been the basis of the student movement grew louder. At the end of May, Tran Van Huong, previously respected for his honesty and known for his desire for the end of the war, was named Prime Minister. The presence in his Cabinet of some liberal intellectuals such as Ton That Thien (Minister of Information, former editor of the Vietnam Guardian) and Au Ngoc Ho (Minister of Economy) gave some hope to the students and encouraged them to step up their struggle. On June 12, the Saigon Student Union, representing 25,000 students (85% of the College student population in the country), made public a statement on the situation of the nation. The statement reads:

"As the TET offensive occurred, most of the Vietnamese people feel that the country is undertaking a historical change. After many years of slaughter, the war cannot be ended by the armed forces. On the other hand, armaments have more and more destroyed and exhausted the energy of the people and the nation. Up to now, that kind of bankruptcy is still going on because of the dominating ambition from the outside, so the present situation of the country is more and more miserable. Understanding the danger of extinction and seeing the slaughter of people, the destruction of buildings, the Saigon Students Union solemnly declares before history, people and students:

"1. It is time for the war in Vietnam to be ended through the negotiations, so the people will not be extinguished. Vietnam must have peace, independence, freedom, so that everybody can have a chance to begin the building of the country.

"2. We ask for an essential peace solution in the South and particularly demand the Tran Van Huong government to carry on his promise as he assured the Premiership in Saigon.

UNB students protest, library forced to close

FREDERICTON — The University of New Brunswick administration closed its library three hours early Friday night. The closure was a response to students protesting compulsory use of ID cards to take out books. Administration officials refused to elaborate further.

The excitement began Friday morning when Mobilization SDS, a group "dedicated to radical action," published a pamphlet called "Fuck The ID Cards".

The pamphlet said ID cards were the beginning of a police-state atmosphere at UNB and suggested students destroy them.

Several SDS members went to the library Friday evening and Saturday afternoon to protest compulsory use of ID cards to sign books out. The practice began this term.

The demonstrators took books from the stacks and tried to sign them out. When asked for their ID cards, each handed the librarian a letter protesting the cards.

The letter emphasized the bearer felt compulsory use of ID cards was a "definite erosion of civil liberties and democracy".

The letter further said the cards are dangerous because they could be used to deny residents of New Brunswick free access to the campus and its facilities and that demonstrations, would continue until the administration ceased to demand ID cards.

Friday evening, students were told that if they intended to persist in the protest, the library would be closed. They persisted and the threat was carried out.

Science Dean C.W. Argue and Physics department head Allan Boone met the students Friday evening but refused to discuss the demonstration with the protesters.

On Saturday, Arts Dean W. S. MacNutt threatened a protesting student, David Hallam, with "full disciplinary action". Later MacNutt said he would speak to administration president Colin Mackay about disciplining Hallam.

Student-Police battle: four killed in Mexico

MEXICO CITY — Violence erupted here again Sunday and resulted in the death of one policeman and hundreds of arrests. Saturday evening, two youths and a policeman were killed.

The conflict centres on army seizure of the National University Thursday. Students have occupied schools throughout the city for two months as part of a general student strike affecting over 80,000 students.

The troops were sent onto the strike-bound campus to head off threatened disruption of the Olympic Games next month. The student strike began after police repression of student demonstrations July 26 in support of Fidel Castro's Cuban regime.

Sunday evening's violence occurred at seven points throughout the city, the most serious incident taking place at a vocational school near the Foreign Ministry building.

Riot police were sent into the area after students seized several buses and blocked streets leading into the school. When cops arrived, the battle began with throwing rocks and bottles, some filled with gasoline, into a barrage of police tear gas and bullets. There were also isolated incidents of sniper fire on the police.

Saturday's three deaths resulted from sniper fire and police retaliation in a five hour gun battle. Over 1,000 demonstrators

President plans to expel Council

St. John's NFLD. — A boycott of the formal admission ceremony for freshmen students at Memorial University has led administration president Lord Stephen Taylor to threaten all 16 members of the student council with the "gravest personal consequences" — interpreted by council members as expulsion.

Taylor made the threats Friday after council had told freshmen to boycott Saturday's admission ceremony in protest of the university's arbitrary placement of students into a "foundation" year. The foundation program requires students weak in some subjects to take a term of remedial work before registering in first year courses.

Only 250 out of 1,500 showed up at the formal ceremony. Normal attendance at the affair is about 50 per cent.

Council had asked students be given the final choice of whether or not to take the foundation year. In a show of hands vote at a general meeting, the students supported the stand by a majority of 10 to 1.

Describing the council's actions as "wicked and evil", Taylor said: "your fathers would be ashamed of you". Earlier this summer, Taylor told two student councillors that any leader of a campus demonstration would be expelled.

Said Taylor "When you reach the world of grown-ups you will understand that you can't have everything your own way."
